

Courtney Butler

Even crustaceans missing special transcription factors and repressors can live with less oxygen. They turn on many genes to live when there is less oxygen than normal.

