

Even though sea animals are in water, they need air for life. Some places in the ocean have low oxygen for animals. There is a type of crab that can live with little air. They use a different way to survive than other sea animals who have oxygen. This means that this crab has super powers and can live anywhere it wants.